State's budget may injure retention programs

CARYN MAZANEC
Staff writer

James R. Thompson's plan to the education budget stagnant for a year would hurt programs that are designed to advance the enrollment and retention of minorities.

Minority programs will be hurt too," said Jacqueline Atkins, chair of the Illinois Joint Committee on Minority Student Achievement.

He named no specific programs that would have the biggest impact on minority students.

Programs such as "loan forgiveness" were not talked about specifically, Atkins said, but it is a concept that has been considered in the past by the joint committee, which is made up of members of the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the Illinois State Board of Education.

Loan forgiveness is a program that enables a student to take out a loan to attend college and work in a specific field. When the student graduates and enters into the field, the loan doesn't have to be repaid.

It was an oral presentation giving an overview of what's been happening," said Kim Knauer of the Illinois Board of Higher Education. "Nothing specific was talked about."

Thompson said he plans to propose to the General Assembly a $2.7 billion budget for elementary and secondary education and a $1.3 billion dollar budget for higher education.

State educators have said the impact of such a budget would be several cuts in programs unless a tax hike is passed. The meeting dealt with the cuts in the budget, and the cuts we are going to make," Knauer said.

When the time comes for actual recommendations, a formal report will be filed, which should be in about one or two months, she said.

The final draft will be issued to the Board of Higher Education, the corporate president, and the community at large, Atkins said.

The proposal also entails an alternate budget that will increase taxes, tuition and fees. However, there will be no increase in faculty salaries, which may result in a loss in faculty, Knauer said.

Without these increases the budget will have to be cut, and the impact of budget cuts will affect the educational process "measurably," Atkins said.

Professor quits for budget reasons

After nine years of pulling in thousands of dollars in federal and private grants, chemistry associate professor Russell Carlson will leave Eastern to continue his nationally renowned research at the University of Georgia.

Because of the budget situation at Eastern, Carlson said that it would be in his best interest to continue his research at Georgia.

"I doubt if Eastern could put together a package that could match the University of Georgia," said Carlson. "It is simply a larger school and has more technical instrumentation that is needed to do the kind of research that I'm involved in."

The University of Georgia is about the size of the University of Illinois at Champaign.

Carlson said that because of the obvious size differences in the schools,

Rives to sample student life

By CRAIG EDWARDS

Coleman Hall might seem like a long walk from Old Main on a cold winter day and Eastern President Stan Rives will find out just how long it is when he trades places for a day with a freshman pre-business major.

Steve Knight, a freshman pre-business major from Pekin, won the opportunity to trade place with President Rives for a day in a lottery sponsored by Sigma Nu fraternity and Sigma Kappa sorority.

Tim Taylor, president of Sigma Nu fraternity, said the switch is scheduled to take place either February 16 or 18.

The lottery, held to support Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Coles County, took place at midnight Tuesday at Ted's Warehouse, 102 N. 6th St.

Rives, who will leave his office in Old Main and attend classes for the first time since he completed the doctorate program at Northwestern University in 1958, said he is looking forward to the switch.

"It will give me a chance to see the university from the students' perspective," Rives said. "That's an opportunity."

Harassment victim to return to job

SPRINGFIELD—A former state Corrections Department spokeswoman who successfully argued that she was fired for complaining about sexual harassment said Wednesday she's ready to go back to work for the man she accused of harassing her.

Lynda Savage won a major round in a four-year legal dispute earlier this week when the state Human Rights Commission ordered the Corrections Department to pay her more than $130,000 and reinstate her in her former job.

"I don't think it's going to be easy," Savage said. "It's certainly not the ideal to return a victim to the harassing work place, especially when they don't seem to admit they were harassing me. But that's my plan."

The commission's ruling, issued Monday, said that Savage was sexually harassed while working for the Corrections Department.

Coalition opens drive to increase taxes to fund public universities

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Illinois public universities will face an exodus of top teachers and a need to cut enrollments if the state doesn't provide more money, a coalition of student and faculty groups said Wednesday in opening a drive for a tax increase.

The newly formed Invest in the Future Coalition presented a "state of the state universities" message at a Statehouse press conference to open what it said would be a redoubled effort to lobby the General Assembly this spring.

Officials of the groups argued that state universities have been hurt badly by the state's failure to increase funding in proportion to rising costs. That problem was exacerbated by last summer's $53 million cut in higher education support, they said.

"We are now starting to pay the price of a decade and a half of neglect," said Mitch Vogel, president of the Universities Council of the Illinois Federation of Teachers.

"Education cuts are not only felt immediately, but long after the cuts are implemented, serious ramifications continue to develop," he said.

The coalition endorsed an increase in the state's 2.5 percent personal income tax rate to provide more education funding, but its members generally declined to specify the amount of such an increase.

"Whether it's one-half percent or 1 percent or 1.5 percent, I'm ready to commit to," Vogel said. "We should let the voters determine the solution."

Leaders of the coalition, which also includes the Illinois Student Association and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said they will launch a petition drive for support of a tax increase stage a rally April 13 at the Capitol to lobby lawmakers.

Douglas resident admits to pulling false alarm

By MATTHEW MAYNARD
Staff writer

Fire trucks and police were dispatched to fight a fire at Douglas Hall Friday night only to find that it was a false alarm set by Douglas Hall resident Brian Burk.

Police and fire departments responded to the alarm at 9:10 p.m., the building was evacuated and a search for the fire began. After a short time no fire was found, but it was discovered that an alarm had been pulled in the southwest basement of Douglas Hall.

Douglas Hall resident assistant John Boyle said the alarm was allegedly pulled by Burk.

"I'm guilty (of pulling the alarm)," Burk, a freshman, said Wednesday afternoon.

According to the campus police report Burk had just left his friends' room and decided to "just pull it."

Investigating police said that four people had witnessed a young male between 5'1"-5'2" standing near the alarm just minutes before it went off. One witness said that when the suspect saw people in the hall he ducked into the men's room. Moments later the alarm sounded, and the suspect was nowhere in sight, witnesses said.

Chief Tom Larson of the Campus Police said that a Douglas resident will be charged with breaking section 2 (pulling a false alarm) of the disorderly conduct code and will be issued a summons to appear in Coles County Circuit Court Feb. 29. The suspect will also be called to appear before the Judicial Board.

However, Larson would not disclose Burk's name.

Larson said that prank alarms are a problem at Eastern. "We get 30-50 (alarms) a semester, but not all are malicious."

"Many people don't realize that false alarms are a felony and could get you up to three years in prison and a fine."

Charleston Fire Chief Tom Watson said that although he has no specific figures about the cost to the community of a false alarm, he said it was quite high.

"Everytime the fire department answers an alarm we send four pieces of very expensive equipment and 10 men," Watson said.

Second lobbying effort scheduled for April 13

By BILL LOOBY
Staff writer

A second "Day of Action" is being planned for April 13, Board of Governor's Representative Mike Riordan said Wednesday night's Student Senate meeting.

The "Day of Action" is a student lobby effort by colleges to influence state legislators to allocate more funds for higher education.

Executive Vice President Trish Nusbaum returned from a trip to Springfield where she attended a Illinois Student Association press conference.

She said Illinois is ranked 47th out of 50 states in state funding for higher education.

The "Day of Action" will be "similar to the first semester 'Day of Action' held on Oct. 21," Riordan said.

He said in addition to the planning of the "Day," that "we're (Eastern) doing a lot on our own."

Representatives of Eastern have been going to Springfield, like Nusbaum on Wednesday, to provide information and coordinate efforts between the five SOG schools, Riordan said.

Plans to prepare Eastern for the "Day" include the need to "educate students) who their legislator is," Riordan said.

ROBB MONTGOMERY / Staff photographer

Executive Vice President Trish Nusbaum gives a report on the Illinois Student Association press conference held in Springfield Tuesday. Nusbaum said Eastern ranked 47th out of 50 states in funding.

He plans to do this by getting a list of each student's congressional district from Daniel Thornburgh, director of University Relations.

Through the list, students would then be asked to send preprinted postcards

In other business, the six replacement senators were named to fill the vacant seats in the senate. Tom Green, Kelly Hardin, and Ken Thompson were selected to the Off-Campus positions, while Kim Nylander, Lorinda Browning, and William Golden were named to the At-Large posts.

These positions were created by the resignations of John Cosenza, Lori Lockman, Mitch Newman, Terry Pitts, and Laurel Beasley. The sixth opening was created when Senate Speaker Denise Wasetis was retained to her post after being re-elected senator in November.

One opening remains, created by the resignation of senator Bob Kelly last week.

A bill, sponsored by Tim Taylor, was approved by senate proposing mandatory office hours daily for teachers during finals week.

A resolution, also sponsored by Taylor, requesting more events be added to Celebration weekend to get students involved was also approved by senate.

Celebration weekend is an annual event sponsored by the College of Fine Arts. This year it is scheduled for April 29-May 1.

University Democratic president reviews Iowa caucus

By BILL LOOBY
Staff writer

Chilling temperatures and driving snow could not stop the Eastern Students for Democratic presidential hopeful Paul Simon from getting Iowans out to the caucuses.

Eastern students made a big mark on the Clinton (Iowa) community," said University Democrats President John Cosenza, who noted the students canvassed in that area. Cosenza said he was pleased with the accomplishments of the students.

Simon, D-Ill., outdueled Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis for second place in the Monday caucus.

Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-

Mo., took first place honors with 27 percent of the vote after 65 percent of the precincts had been counted.

Simon had 25 percent of the vote and Dukakis 21 percent.

"Simon ended up right where he should be," Cosenza said.

"Gephardt had his organization the longest time (in Iowa)," Cosenza said. "When he gets to the primaries, he won't do as well."

Due to his finish in the caucus, Cosenza said, Simon's message "will be heard."

The caucus procedure is different than primary voting.

Caucuses are gatherings of people at designated precinct areas (for example churches and gyms). Supporters of each candidate are assembled in different areas, issues are discussed and delegates for each candidate are elected. The candidate with the most delegates wins.

This is the first of four steps. The delegates picked at the caucuses are then sent to the county conventions. At the county conventions, delegates are picked to the state convention, where the final 58 delegates to the Democratic National Convention are chosen.

Cosenza said he was in charge of a canvas crew (door-to-door) that "picked-up 80 supporters."

The type of canvassing Cosenza said he did is called target canvassing. This involves soliciting the support of people already leaning toward Simon.

Teachers, due to Simon's educational stance, and senior citizens are main targets for this type of canvassing, Cosenza said.

The Des Moines Register reported that Simon has the support of an organization of Social Security "notch babies." This is an endorsement of the Iowa Committee to Correct Inequities in Social Security and Medicare.

"Notch babies" are people born from 1917 to 1921, who get smaller Social Security payments than others born either before or after them.

Mecham living his own Flying Circus

It seems as though some people are born with chemical imbalances which inhibit their ability to notice what's going on around them.

Their world seems as though it's collapsing around them and they pretend it isn't happening.

There is no greater example of this than Evan Mecham, indicted, impeached, object of recall and generally disliked governor of Arizona. Actually he isn't serving as governor right now, because he's on trial in the Arizona State Senate.

But, that doesn't really matter because he hasn't done anything wrong. Everyone else is at fault.

His opposition probably started when he declared Martin Luther King Jr.'s Arizona holiday unconstitutional. He simply got rid of it. But he didn't do anything wrong.

He has had repeated confrontations with reporters, which is not unusual. But his confrontations have been on the level of a 5-year-olds.

Mecham believes the paper is out to get him and the people support him in his battle against the press. He seems to believe the old cliché, "If you don't like the message, kill the messenger."

The paper he is battling against, The Arizona Republic, is traditionally a very conservative paper and is considered, by many, one of the best in the country. Why would they be holding a personal vendetta against him?

There is a grassroots-movement to have a recall of his election. But, he feels confident that he will win. Everyone else who believes he won't is merely being ridiculous.

Why would anyone call for a recall election for a governor who is as popular as he himself purports?

That's a hard one to figure out, but that's not the average person's place to judge. Even though the average people elected him, they should not judge him.

He was indicted on charges of excepting illegal campaign contributions. Mecham says he will be vindicated.

The question is who will avenge him?

The Arizona Republican party, of which he is a member, has called for his resignation. He has taken the same view that the people will vindicate him.

It is highly unusual for members of a political party to call for the resignation of its highest elected member. But it doesn't seem to phase him.

Yet, the people are the ones who are trying to oust him with the recall vote in May. They apparently are fed up with his administration.

It is rare for someone to have to fight off so many people who want to see him ousted. In fact, when is the last time someone was impeached, indicted and made to participate in a recall all in the span of one month.

This whole disturbing affair reminds me of an episode of Monty Python's Flying Circus. In the episode a certified public accountant goes through his day without noticing things like his wife having an affair with two men, his neighbor being murdered by tribal warrior, Frankenstein's monster killing people on the bus stop and a topless woman in a magazine shop.

Very similar to what Evan Mecham is experiencing.

But then Python is make-believe and Mecham is real life, of course, "that's something completely different."

Watch where you talk, it could cost you

While walking across sheets of ice on campus recently, a classmate turned to me and grumbled, "You'd think they could at least put some salt down on these sidewalks."

Immediately, I covered his mouth with my hand and pulled him around a corner. "Shhhh," I said, "they'll hear you."

"Who'll hear me?" he asked, "And get your crummy mitts off me."

"The higher-ups who run this place," I replied, "that's all they need is to hear you belly-ache about ice hazards around here, and they'll spring into bureaucratic action."

He didn't know what I meant, so after he wrestled out of the headlock I had him in, I explained the "Theory of Tuition Increases."

If you're not aware of it, tuition at Eastern recently rose by $96 per semester. This is good news for the institution and of course, bad news for the students, especially since available financial aid dwindles annually.

The increase is an answer to Gov. Thompson's $60 million budget cut for higher education. Or is it?

Oh, I know that the University Accountant can produce mountains of paperwork, which cites baffling fiscal reasons it occurs, but who really understands it?

Maybe they justify the increases by presenting us with a maze of economic equations, knowing that most of us couldn't solve for 'x' to save our lives. As a journalism major, I have better success solving math problems when I use a Ouija board.

So, to provide an understandable reason for the increases, I researched to the highest level and came away with the "Theory of Tuition Increases." Okay—so I made it up.

Even as you read this, groups of college administrators are hanging around in each others offices. They're playing 'Twister' in suits and ties, and eating trail-mix.

Through an open window, they'll overhear a complaining student wander by, and then one will grin, nudge another in the ribs and say, "Hey Phil, let's jack up their tuition again. Want to?"

Gary Larsen

This statement makes them all laugh so hard that the 'Twister' game is ruined from deans and presidents and various administrators caving in on top of each other on the game mat.

They laugh well on into the night, ordering pizzas and kicking new tuition figures around until one of them finally says, "C'mon, stop, my gut can't take anymore. Let's close at $96 per student before one of us herniates a disk. Okay fellas?" All agree, and they carpool it home.

The next day a meeting is scheduled, at which delegates of every Illinois college will be in attendance. It becomes roughly the size of the Live-Aid concert and the tough decision of which caterer to hire is a focal point.

At the meeting, everyone stands around and agrees that it would be in the best monetary interest of all colleges involved if everyone unnecessarily raised tuition, once again, for no good reason. Much head-nodding ensues, and the meeting is called to order.

In no time, the proposal is voted up and then many thousands of margaritas are served to the raucous cheers of the deliriously happy administrators. The bureaucratic end of it takes a mere 15 minutes, so that the next three hours can be spent drinking and playing Hackey-Sack.

Ultimately, as it's been since the pilgrims landed, the Annual Fall Tuition Hike is honored and $96 is tacked on to our fall fees. Administrators gather together for a Thanksgiving feast, and there is much rejoicing.

Of course, the $96 sum is subject to fluctuation from year to year, in direct correlation to institutional need and George Steinbrenners' mood swings. Currently, institutional need hinges on a doomed tax hike proposal and George is crabby, so prepare for another increase in the fall.

So there you have it. Triggered by a casual complaint, the process rolls along and results in a tuition increase. It's inevitable.

Do us all a favor. The next time you gripe, make sure it's a safe distance from the ears of the people in power. My wallet is still sore from last semester.

—Gary Larsen is a staff writer for The Daily Eastern News.

Low education funding will hurt Illinois

Illinois could face a decrease in its overall student enrollment if Gov. James R. Thompson's planned proposal for next year's education budget is passed by the General Assembly.

As Illinois becomes less attractive in regard to higher education, Illinois students might very well decide to attend out-of-state institutions. In the same sense, out-of-state students that would have come to Illinois might reconsider.

Rising tuition isn't the only reason students might be repelled, as other areas that are cut could include libraries and teaching facilities. If the students can't get the books and equipment required for learning in Illinois, they can always cross the border.

The same would apply if the size of the faculty was cut.

Thompson's proposal would affect all levels of education by stifling the already low budgets that were imposed this past year.

Eastern's budget this year is 4.2 percent less than it was last year. If the inflation factor is considered, the percentage of the decrease is even greater.

Thompson proposed $2.7 billion for secondary and elementary education and $1.3 billion for higher education. The Illinois Board of Higher Education requested a 16.7 percent increase. If the increase is not granted, other programs will have to be cut.

Probably the most obvious alternative is a tax hike, preferably one that raises taxes for businesses and individuals alike. But, this is an election year—a time when congressmen traditionally are reluctant to raise taxes.

Thompson said there is no other way to fund education except a tax hike. By not requesting a tax hike in his proposal, Thompson has implied he is not even considering more funding for education.

Eastern President Stan Rives has said if we don't get a tax increase, we will have to consider another tuition hike, and having been dealt a $96 tuition increase last semester by the Board of Governors, Eastern students are not ready for another. Besides, the students should not have to take up the slack every time the budget is in trouble.

Rives doesn't believe a tax increase is certain, nor does he believe it won't be passed merely because this is an election year; however, we believe otherwise.

We hope the General Assembly will prove us wrong.

Sheer Stupidity!

ORTEGA explains the "PEACE" Plan...

You figure it out...?

POTPOURRI

Weaver says tax increase is necessary for education

By CRAIG EDWARDS
Staff writer

State Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Charleston, says there's only one answer to finding the necessary funding needed for education in Illinois.

The answer, although Weaver hates to admit it, is a tax increase.

"I hate voting for a tax increase, but when the money is needed it has to be done," Weaver said in a telephone interview from Springfield Wednesday.

Weaver was in Charleston Tuesday to meet with Eastern President Stan Rives, the president of Lakeland College in Mattoon and other elementary and high school administrators.

"We had a good discussion," Weaver said, adding that Rives and the others made a good case for their financial concerns.

State educators first became concerned about future funding when Gov. James R. Thompson announced his recommendation of $2.7 billion for secondary and elementary education and $1.3 billion for higher education, the same as this year, at a Illinois Board of Higher Education meeting Feb. 2.

Thomas Layzell, Board of Governors chancellor, has said his main objective is to convince the General Assembly to support a tax increase for education.

However, Weaver said passing a tax increase will be difficult, especially since this is an election year. "The representatives simply won't vote against their constituents," he said.

Weaver also said it is still too early to tell what kind of a tax increase will be proposed to generate funding for education. "What I'm hearing some support for is an income tax increase," he said, adding that he is against any increases in property tax.

"I don't like property tax. I'd like to see us get rid of it," Weaver said, supporting a reduction in property tax to accompany an income tax increase for education funding.

"With so many people not doing well economically, property taxes are hard to pay," Weaver said, adding that the funds needed for education could be raised through an income tax increase, which would affect only the taxpayers who are able to pay.

However, Weaver said some administrators complain that if income would go down, so would funding. "But a tax increase seems to be the only answer," he said.

"It used to be easy to get money from other parts of the government," Weaver said, adding that it can't be done anymore because so many bills requiring state funding have been postponed. "We have a real problem in Illinois," he said.

oter registration ends Monday

JEFF McCOMBS

Monday is the last day to register to vote in the upcoming March 15 primary election. The Coles County Clerk's office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday, and open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. The County Clerk's office will also be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Monday for registration purposes only. Betty Coffrin, Coles County's County Clerk, said to be eligible to vote, one must be properly registered to vote at their current address. "Voters should keep their voter registration updated," Coffrin said. Coffrin said students who changed dormitories or house addresses should re-register at their current address. Voter registration requirement stipulate, persons must be a native born or naturalized citizen of the United States and 18-years-old or older. They also must be a resident of their precinct 30 days on or before the date of the election. If voters have changed addresses within the county more than 30 days prior to the election, they must update their address in order to be eligible to cast a ballot, Coffrin said.

B meeting canceled this week

The Apportionment Board will not meet this week in observance of Presidents' Day. The AB Chair Craig Lange. When AB resumes meeting at 2 p.m. Feb. 18 in the Union Station Arcola-Tuscola Room, will hear the budget proposals and justifications from Student Senate, Sports and Recreation and AB, he said. In addition to those, AB allocates student activity fees to three other boards: Players, Student Publications and University Board. "Right now it looks like we will be budgeting $410,000 to $415,000 in the budgeting process this year, but I don't have an exact figure," Lange said. He said the amount of money in activity fees AB will have to allocate "looks to be less tight than I originally expected," Lange said.

portunity I don't get very often." Knight also said he is looking forward to the opportunity. "I think it will be a unique experience," he said, adding that it will be interesting to see what he (Rives) does everyday." Knight said although the president knows what it's like to be a student because he was one, not many students know what it's like to be the president of a university. "I think it will be exciting to see what a school administrator does," he said. Knight said his schedule on Tuesdays and Thursdays includes English at 8 a.m., German at 10 a.m. and Health at noon. "It's a good thing that noon class isn't P.E.," Rives said, worried that the health class might be physical education. Although Knight knows his own schedule, he isn't sure what the president does in a typical day. "I guess he attends meetings," he said. "We will give him something to do," Rives said, explaining that a typical day for him includes meeting with administrators and discussing their concerns and problems. "I also do a lot of work with budgets," Rives said, adding that he is currently working on a tax increase campaign. Rives said he doesn't think the academic world has changed that much since he graduated from college. "The interaction between students and faculty is still there," he said.

Eastern to hold keyboard clinic

By TEGAN WARD
Staff writer

Eastern's music department will host the annual keyboard clinic at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the Fines Arts Building.

Guy Duckworth, piano instructor and author, will present a workshop as well as a master class for piano teachers and piano students alike.

Duckworth, a professor at the University of Colorado at Boulder, has made contributions to the field of piano instruction for more than three decades, including a teaching series for children, a college keyboard text, numerous articles, a television series and a film on graduate instruction.

Piano teachers within a 50 or 60 mile radius were invited to attend and bring students, said Associate Music Professor Karen Sanders.

CAA will consider new courses

The Council on Academic Affairs has a full agenda on its hands when it meets at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Union-addition Arcola-Tuscola Room, council member Ellen Keiter said Wednesday.

The council will first consider two new course proposals, one in business education and another in data processing. Business Education 2510 will be a course geared to business majors and focuses on computer systems and microcomputer applications. Data processing 2175 will concentrate on management informational systems.

The council will also consider major and minor requirements for the Lumpkin College of Business.

In addition, changes in the college of business admissions policy will be considered.

Honorary Degree Nominations

Nominations for honorary degrees to be awarded in 1989 are being accepted by the Honorary Degree Committee. The Committee is seeking nominations from faculty students, staff, alumni and other friends of the University.

Eligible for consideration are "persons who have achieved a record of major distinction at the state or national level in such areas as education, public service, research, humanities, business or the professions." In exceptional circumstances, honorary degrees may be granted to persons who may not be nationally known but have made significant contributions to higher education or to Eastern.

Elected or appointed public officials in state or local government, members and employees of the Board of Governors, and members and employees of the Board of Higher Education are ineligible during the term of their office or employment. Ordinarily, no more than two honorary degrees shall be awarded by each Board of Governors university in any academic year.

Nomination forms and additional information may be obtained by writing or calling:

Olympic demonstration sports are previewed

Curling, disabled skiing, freestyle skiing, short-track speed skating

By BRENT FEENEY
Staff writer

Today we look at the four demonstration sports at the XV Winter Olympic Games in Calgary, Alberta, Canada. A demonstration sport is not part of the official Olympic program, but was added on by the organizers as part of the Games.

CURLING

DATES: Feb. 14-17, 19, 20 at Max Bell Arena

OBJECT: Teams are made up of four players; a skip (captain), a curler (thrower) and two sweeps (broomhandlers). The curler attempts to throw a 44-pound granite stone down a sheet of ice measuring 146 feet long by 14 feet wide. The sweeps sweep along the stone to allow it to pick up speed and reach the target. A game is made up of 10 ends (rounds), and the winner is the team that places the most stones closest to the center of the target.

WHO'S THE BEST: Both the American men and women can expect formidable challenges from the homestanding Canadians and Scotland, where the game was invented. While Americans feel curling can be pretty boring, Canadians sold out all 21,000 tickets made available faster than any sport except figure skating and speed skating.

The American men are made up of Tom Locken, Bud Somerville (at 50, the oldest Olympian), Bob Nichols and Bob Christman. The American women's team consists of Lisa Schoenberg, Lori Mountford, Carla Casper and Erika Brown (at 14, the youngest Olympian). Switzerland, West Germany, Norway and Sweden also loom as top teams at Calgary.

DISABLED SKIING

DATES: Feb. 16, 17, 19 at Canada Olympic Park and Canmore Nordic Centre.

OBJECT: There will be two events at Calgary. One is a 5km cross-country race for the blind, in which skiers, led by sighted guides, will race across the course. The other is a modified giant slalom, in which skiers who have had a leg amputated above the knee use one ski and poles with skis attached to them. In both events, the fastest time wins.

WHO'S THE BEST: American hopes in the men's giant slalom rest with David Jamison and Greg Mannino, while the women go with Cathy Gentile, Diana Golden and Martha Hill. The only American entrant in the 5km cross-country race is John Novotny.

FREESTYLE SKIING

DATES: Feb. 21, 22, 25 at Nakiski Resort, Mount Allan and Canada Olympic Park.

OBJECT: Three events make up the freestyle events: moguls, aerials and ballet.

In the moguls, skiers try to cover the course as fast as they can by jumping over a series of bumps. They must do at least two aerial stunts during the run. In aerials, skiers launch themselves over an incline and perform somersaults, twists and other acrobatic maneuvers. Points are awarded for height, form and degree of difficulty. Ballet is just that—a dance on skis. Judges award points much like figure skating.

WHO'S THE BEST: American ballet skier Jan Bucher looks to be the best bet for a medal at Calgary. Bucher has won seven World Cup ballet championships but has been defeated by France's Christine Rossi the last two years.

Other American prospects include Bruce Bolesky, Nelson Carmichael, Steven Desovich, Elizabeth McIntyre and Melanie Palenik.

SHORT-TRACK SKATING

DATES: Feb. 22-25 at Bell Arena

OBJECT: Racers compete four to six at a time around a 111-meter oval. Men compete in 500, 1,000, 1,500, 3,000 and 5,000 meter relay events. Women skate at 500, 1,000, 1,500, 3,000 and 5,000 meter relays.

WHO'S THE BEST: Americans should do very well in the events at Calgary. The men's squad is led by Brian Arseneau, Dave Bestman and Dave Pavlacic.

Lady Panthers ink top hitter

A first team, all-state selection by the Champaign News-Gazette signed a national letter of intent Wednesday to play volleyball for the Lady Panthers next fall.

Jennifer Aggertt, a 5-8 hitter from Jacksonville High School who led her team to two consecutive regional titles, signed on the first national signing day for college recruits.

"Jennifer's strengths lie in her blocking and passing," said Eastern Coach Betty Ralston. "She's also extremely versatile, and that will allow us to play her at any of the front-row positions.

"She's got a real strong academic background and good work habits. She's the type of athlete we like to have at Eastern," Ralston said.

McFadden Saturday in hopes of preventing the same type of offensive outburst the 6-0 New York City native displayed during the teams last meeting.

"We're going to make him work a lot harder for his points," Samuels said.

McFadden is currently AMC's leading scorer with a 20.8 points per game average.

Eastern's probable lineup consists of forwards Tom Hemphill and Joe Hamilton, center Vince Macciocchi and guard Norm Evans.

Track team hosts big meet

STEFEN FEENEY

The men's track team is facing a tough challenge this weekend at Lantz Fieldhouse when Northwest Missouri State, Missouri State and Southern Illinois come calling for a regular scoring meet. Activities get started at 1 p.m. at Lantz Fieldhouse. "We're going to be our toughest yet so far," said Assistant Coach Tom Akers. "The three teams that are coming in are of good quality, and it should be a good meet."

SIU and Indiana State are members of the Missouri Valley Conference. The Salukis last year's MVC outdoor champion and the Panthers are improved from last year.

The Salukis feature 1987 All-

American miler Andy Pettigrew, who finished third in last year's NCAA Indoor Track Championship mile and holds the Fieldhouse record for fastest mile while the distance-oriented Bears have miler Matt Wegenka, who ran a 4:10.5 mile last year, the AMCU's fastest.

"It'll be a real good warmup for the (AMCU Indoor) championship (scheduled for Feb. 26-27 at Northern Iowa's UNI-Dome)," Akers said. "We'll have the opportunity to get both points and quality times."

On his own team, Akers is pointing to people like AMCU Track Athlete of the Week Jim Maton, who qualified for the NCAA Championship at 800-meters last week during a meet held at the University of Illinois' Armory.

"Jim ran outstanding last week," Akers said of the senior Olympic hopeful. "We're giving him some speed work right now, so when the conference meet comes up, he'll be sharp and fresh. If he keeps up the hard work, he might be able to cut another second off his time."

Akers also pointed sophomore sprinter Gregg Heggs, sophomore middle distance runner Fred Neal, junior sprinter Ian Issacs and junior jumper Derrick Lee as keys for the Panther tracksters.

"Derrick is making great progress in the long jump and triple jump," Akers said. "He could give us some depth in the horizontal jumps, and that would really help."

Grapplers face test at UNI

STEFEN FEENEY

The wrestling team faces another stern test Friday as they travel to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for a meet with UNI. The meet, at UNI's West Campus, begins at 7:30 p.m. The purple Panthers enter the match-up ranked 11th in the nation by the Wrestling News, but Ralph McCausland is looking forward to the meet.

"We've got a super tough team," McCausland said. "All of their wrestlers are nationally ranked, but we're going up there with the idea that we're going to wrestle our best."

"We're relishing the challenge," McCausland said. "We're not going to hold anything back from them. We're going to wrestle them the best that we know how."

The Panthers go into Friday's match with two of their starters questionable as of Wednesday. Senior 167-pounder Henry Teverbaugh has a hand injury, and junior heavyweight Copache Tyler is suffering from an ankle sprain.

Everyone else is healthy and should see action, according to McCausland.

"It doesn't matter who we're wrestling," McCausland said. "You have to go out there and wrestle your best at all times."

After Friday's match, the grapplers have one final home dual meet against Missouri at Lantz on Feb. 17. Following that, McCausland plans on giving his troops a few days off.

"We'll let the guys get healed and rested up. After that, we'll pick up our intensity and get ready for the regional."

By GARY LARSEN
Staff writer

Eastern's swim team will compete over the weekend in two dual meets, traveling to Valparaiso Friday for a 7 p.m. meet and then taking on Northern Illinois in DeKalb at 1:30 p.m.

Eastern's women are coming off the Gateway conference meet, where they finished fourth. In Valparaiso, Eastern's women will face a team that has little depth, according to Eastern Coach Ray Padovan.

"They're only eight or nine deep," said Padovan, "but last year they had a good women's team."

Eastern's men are coming off a two-week layoff, and should be well-rested. They will also face a Valparaiso team with very little depth.

On Saturday against Northern Illinois, Eastern's men take on a Huskie team that won the Wheaton Invitational earlier this year. "They've got a deep commitment to their program at Northern," Padovan said, "and an exceptionally good men's and women's team." Northern's women placed second at the Wheaton meet.

After this weekend, the Panthers will have two weeks before they compete in the Midwest Championships. "Most of the rest is over after this weekend," Padovan said "and then we'll have to get ready."

Booters in final indoor meet

By BRENT FEENEY
Staff writer

Eastern's soccer team has its final indoor soccer tournament of the year this weekend as they travel to Bridgeton, Mo., for the National Collegiate Indoor Soccer Tournament.

The Panther booters won last week's Juvenile Diabetes Foundation tournament in Chicago by allowing one goal in six games played.

That's quite a bit to improve on, but Coach Cizo Mosnia is optimistic.

"It'll be hard to duplicate what we did last week," Mosnia said, "but we're looking forward to this week's tournament."

The last time the Panthers were in St. Louis for a tournament, they ran into a buzzsaw of a Missouri-St. Louis team that went on to win the Classic. The Rivermen are entered in this weekend's tournament, and the booters play them in the first game of the meet at noon Saturday.

"We feel we've got something to prove to UMSL," Mosnia said. "We ran into a really hot goalie when we played them, and we would like another chance at them."

In addition to the UMSL match, the booters will take on Lewis and Clark Community College of Godfrey, Ill., at 7 p.m. Saturday and McKendree College of Lebanon at 11 a.m. Sunday.

The semifinals are set for 3:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. on Sunday, with the title tilt scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

Spoo said of Purcell: "He is ultimately a 285 pounder. He runs very well and he has tremendous body control for a big guy."

Purcell reportedly turned down offers from Arizona State and Missouri to sign with the Panthers.

Included in the haul of lineman are high school seniors: Jeff Brewster (6-3,
 220), Dan Dee (6-2, 230 and a USA
 Today honorable mention All-America), Brad Fichtel (6-3, 230), Dan Jackson (6-
 3, 215), and Chad Gardner (6-4, 235).

At the wide receiver position, Spoo inked 6-0, 185 pound Brian Morrisey of Lagrange Lyons HS and 5-10, 170 pound Sycamore product Mike Petrie.

To fill the void left by the loss of punter Steve Tillotson and kicker Rich
 Ehmke, Spoo signed punter/placekicker
 Brian Pindar of Downers Grove North.

"Our tight end situation wasn't the best," said Spoo, "so we got three freshman to bolster that area."

Besides Moore, Spoo and his staff recruited tight end/linebackers Richard Brown (6-4, 205) and Bob Howarth (6-2, 215).

"There may have been other schools forward Kimberly Scoggin combined for 64 points and 23 boards in the first meeting, and is an obvious concern for the Panthers in their second meeting.

"They took it down our throats and caught us standing and not playing any defense," Hilke said. "We have to move our feet and concentrate on playing better post defense."

Mago is the key that turns the ignition for the Bears' offense. She averages 17.4 points and 8.5 rebounds per outing.

The player to watch, according to Hilke, may be freshman guard Patty Porter whom Hilke calls "a real talent in the conference." Porter is second in scoring with 14.3 points a game.

First year Southwest Coach Cheryl Burnett thinks the key to victory will be "stopping the outside game of Eastern."

The outside game she is referring to are guards Barb Perkes and Sheryl Bonsett.

Perkes, the Gateway Conference
 Player of the Week, scored a career-high 28 points against the Bears in their last meeting while Bonsett added
 17 points and a career-high 12 assists

"I think we are a much stronger team right now," Hilke said. "We're playing together well, we have great bench strength and we're learning more about the game."

Spoo, Panthers sign 19 grid recruits

By BARRY BOTTINO
Sports editor

Eastern Football Coach Bob Spoo and his staff took to the highways and byways of the Midwest in signing 19 players to national letters of intent, including four out-of-state prospects.

Spoo inked three junior college prospects along with 16 high school players.

Six-foot, 190-pound defensive back Rod Heard and 6-3, 265 pound offensive lineman Eric Thorsen (both from Joliet Junior College) head the list of juco transfers along with 6-3, 240 pound defensive lineman Jim Sarver (Harper Community College).

"The only reason you recruit junior college players is to hope they can come in and make an immediate impact," Spoo said.

"I think Saver can give us help on the defensive line; Thorsen has great speed and potential; and Rod Heard is an exceptional defensive back."

The first-year Panther coach also brought in four recruits from outside the state of Illinois in Indiana running back Jeff Miles and tight end Tim Moore and Kentucky prospects

Jamie Jones (running back) and Kent McIntyre (defensive line).

Miles led the state in scoring with 35 touchdowns and was second in the Hoosier state with 2,080 rushing yards.

The New Palestine native was also a consensus first-team all-stater and Region eight Most Valuable Player for a high school squad that finished with an 11-3 record and a state 3A semifinal bid.

Moore finished the year as an Evansville Courier-Press all-city tight end and defensive end.

Jones, a 5-8, 160 pounder, ran for 3,330 yards in his final two seasons that included a small school state championship in his junior year for West Paducah's Heath High School.

McIntyre was a three-year starter for Marshall County High School and will compete with Jones in a Kentucky All-Star game this summer.

"The Kentucky area is not far from our borders and there is tremendous talent there," said Spoo, who also scouted players

Big weekend in store for Lady Panther basketball

By MIKE FITZGERALD
Staff writer

Although Eastern's women's basketball team has already clinched its 10th straight winning season, it now sets its sights on first place in the Gateway Conference.

The Panthers host two "must-win" league games at home starting with Wichita State at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Southwest Missouri State at 5:15 p.m. Saturday.

Eastern is in a three-way tie for second place in the league with a 10-3 record along with Illinois State and Southern Illinois. Indiana State holds first place with an 11-2 record.

The Panthers won their first meeting with the Shockers, 4-8 and 7-13, by a 69-58 score in Wichita, Kan. But Coach Barbara Hilke is the first to say the victory wasn't as easy as the score might indicate.

"They gave us a good run in the first half at their place, and they are only one of two teams that outrebounded us in the Gateway," Hilke said.

The Shockers are led in scoring by senior forward Crystal Westfield who is averaging 15.9 points per game. Lori Findahl leads the team in rebounding with 6.8 boards per game.

The Shockers also have a potent weapon on the bench in Dawn Weber who is averaging 17.8 points and 8.3 rebounds per game. Wichita State is also one of the better road teams in the Gateway with a 5-6 record away from the confines of Levitt Arena.

Hilke thinks the key to victory over Wichita will be an improvement in the team's defense and rebounding from the first meeting.

The Lady Bears of Southwest Missouri, 4-8 and 7-13, will roll into Charleston after a confrontation with Southern Illinois at Carbondale Thursday.

Southwest handed Eastern a 95-85 loss in their first meeting, a contest in which the Lady Bears went to the foul line 43 times.

"They just flat outplayed us," Hilke said. "It was a game where all five of their starters fouled out and where the rebounds were even."

Southwest's frontline of forward Kelly Mago, center Sarah Stohs and

Panthers host CSU; hope to be spoiler

Eastern's basketball team has the chance to play spoiler Saturday when it hosts AMCU conference co-leader Cleveland State at 7:30 in Lantz Gym.

The visiting Vikings boast a 16-4 overall record, 7-1 in league play. Cleveland State is tied with Southwest Missouri State for the conference lead.

Cleveland State has beaten Eastern eight straight times with the last Panther win, 95-81, in 1984 at Lantz. The Vikings are in the midst of a five-game winning streak and have won seven of their last eight games.

With an 11-10 overall mark, Eastern is guaranteed to finish this season with more wins than in 1986-87, when they finished 9-19.

But the Panthers still find themselves tied with Valparaiso for last place in the conference at 2-6, despite collecting road victories at Western Illinois and Illinois-Chicago in Eastern's last two AMCU contests.

The Panthers dropped a previous meeting of the two teams, 95-84 at Cleveland State on Jan. 18.

Cleveland State was paced in scoring by junior guard Ken "Mouse" McFadden, who poured in 29 points. McFadden was picked as one of the nation's top 10 point guards in the March issue of Inside Sports magazine.

Another Viking that provided offensive punch in the Jan. 18 contest was 6-8 senior center Eric Mudd. Mudd scored 26 in that game and is averaging over 18 ppg. Mudd also leads the league with a 9.6 rebounds per game average.

"Mudd is really their key factor," Samuels said. "He dominates the boards, scores on high percentage shots and is a very physical player."

Although McFadden scored 29 against the Panthers at Cleveland State, he scored only three in the first half.

Samuels said many of McFadden's second half points came on short baskets following turnovers caused by Cleveland State's pressure defense.

Samuels said he plans to use a combination of guards to defend

Exploring the real meaning of Valentine's Day

Although the traditional celebration of Valentine's Day will be marked by exchanges of hugs, kisses, candy in heart-shaped boxes and plenty of greeting cards, it was not intended to be a holiday for lovers.

It is actually a combination of a holiday in honor of the Roman god Lupercus, who supposedly kept wolves away from the shepherds' flocks, and Christian martyr St. Valentine.

The feast of Lupercus was celebrated Feb. 15, at which time young Roman children would draw lots for game partners for the year. By the way, Lupercus was supposed to be the equivalent of the Greek god Pan—the god who played the pipe and had the lower half of a goat.

Meanwhile, the feast of St. Valentine, celebrated Feb. 14, honors one of the first Christians in Rome to believe in one god rather than the traditional dozen Roman gods. Valentine was imprisoned when the emperor began blaming the Christians for antagonizing the gods and bringing strife to the empire.

While in jail, Valentine supposedly restored the sight of a guard's daughter. Unfortunately, Valentine's kind deed did not save him from becoming an appetizer for the lions in the Coliseum in 270 A.D.

Somehow the feasts of Lupercus and St. Valentine were combined and celebrated as Valentine's Day on Feb. 14. Apparently it sounds more noble to celebrate the death of a Christian than cheer on a god who plays the flute and has hooves.

From a holiday honoring a flutist who was part goat and a martyr who was fed to the lions (Lupercus could have saved Valentine from the wolves), the holiday was somehow warped and twisted into its present state—a day when people pay homage to their sweeties.

The Book of Holidays, by J. Walker McSpadden, describes the transformation this way: "And very likely it was the time of the year when birds are nesting and new hope springing, that brought about the choosing of what came to be called one's 'valentine.'"

The British kept part of the original spirit of the Lupercus festival intact for a little while. In his Diary, Samuel Pepys wrote of women in England during the late 17th century who drew the names of their valentines themselves, much the same way the Roman children who drew lots for their game partners.

In fact, Pepys noted, when one woman drew the Duke of Richmond as her valentine, she received a jewel worth $4,000. Miss Stuart was not as fortunate the next year, receiving a ring worth only $1,500.

In their stodgy tradition, the British made it a formal affair, even publishing The Complete Valentine Writer as late as the 19th century.

The French, on the other hand, made creating poetic valentines into a pastime and an art form.

However, Americans cheapened the holiday with capitalism and commercialism as only Americans can do.

The Greeting Card Association of America projects Valentine's Day cards will account for 1 billion of the 7.6 billion greeting cards exchanged annually. That means Valentine's Day cards will make up $5.13 million of the industry's $3.9 billion in sales expected in 1988.

And, of the 1 billion cards to be exchanged this year, teachers will receive the most cards, said Patti Brickman, director of communications for the Greeting Card Association of America. Children are the second largest group of recipients, followed by mothers, wives and sweethearts, respectively. Fifty percent of all valentines are hand-delivered.

Brickman also said the baby boomers, ages 25 to 44, represent 41 percent of all valentine buyers.

Valentine's Day is also the occasion which men actually buy the cards they give, she added.

"Generally, 90 percent of all greeting cards are purchased by females," Brickman said. "But, during this holiday, men participate in card buying more than on any other card-sending occasion.

"Although many other times a man may send a card, it may be his secretary, mother, daughter or wife who actually buys it," she said. "At this time, you see more men at the racks. Men tend to buy the more expensive, romantic, fancier, sappier kind of card."

Along more traditional lines, flowers and candy are popular Valentine's Day gifts. But for those who don't think they can adequately express their love with a card, personalized underwear in briefs or boxer shorts is also an available and practical option.

'Good Morning, Vietnam'

Williams' talent shines through in latest film effort

It has taken eight films, but Robin Williams has finally found a role tailored to his unique, improvisational style. "Good Morning, Vietnam," the current box office champ, gives Williams the chance to play a character as outspoken as he really is off the set.

"Good Morning, Vietnam" is the true story of armed forces radio disc jockey Adrian Cronauer. Coming to Saigon in early 1965, his job is to motivate the troops in the field. At this point in the "war," only a small number of Americans are involved (50,000), and the battle action is still located far from Saigon, which at this time, is still considered the Paris of the Orient.

As time passes, however, the number of troops is increased, and the war moves closer to the city. And soon guerrilla attacks and bombings occur within the city. Cronauer's integrity is tested when the Army refuses to allow him to report the war's steady march toward the city.

As the story progresses, the conflict in the field grows, and tensions in the city grow along with it. As the GI's favorite DJ, Cronauer finds himself being slowly stripped of his freedom to report the news as it actually happens.

Along the way, Cronauer defies the Army brass by ignoring its directives, creating his own rules and regulations regarding appropriate radio etiquette and programming. He also befriends a young Vietnamese boy, whose sister he tries to date. Cronauer even invades the young woman's English class to be near her. Meanwhile, he still provides radio broadcasts twice a day.

Although the film's setting is in Vietnam, and its star is Robin Williams, it is not a slapstick comedy nor is it a war film. The film is a character study about a man, who can hardly be called a soldier, fighting from the back of the war, and putting it to rock n' roll. He does whatever he can to help the soldiers time pass a little easier, and a little more quickly.

Although Cronauer's radio broadcasts make up only a small part of this film, these are Williams' chances to shine. Director Barry Levinson ("Diner," "Tin Men") let Williams improvise most of these segments, turning on the cameras and letting Williams do what he does best.

Seven times before Williams has tried unsuccessfully to score on screen. First came "Popeye" in 1980, before Williams proved he could do more than stand-up comedy in "The World According to Garp."

Until now, "Moscow On the Hudson" had been his largest screen success. However, Williams followed with three commercial bombs, "The Survivors," "The Best of Times" and "Club Paradise." More recently, Williams appeared in Saul Bellow's "Sieze the Day" on PBS.

After skyrocketing to star status on ABC's "Mork & Mindy" Williams became one of Hollywood's hottest partier, and until the death of his close friend, John Belushi, he continued to entertain that lifestyle. Belushi's unnecessary death, coupled with the birth of his son Zachary, convinced Williams to reassess his lifestyle.

In its first week of release (in four cities and on just four screens) the film grossed $1 million. The following week the film was released nationwide, and in its first three days grossed more than $12 million.

Touchstone Pictures (owned by the Disney Corporation) continues its string of blockbusters (Three Men and a Cradle, Baby, Ruthless People and Splash) with this one. The film has already won Robin Williams this year's Golden Globe Award for Best Actor. Hopefully, the film can do as well at the Academy Awards in April, where, incidentally, Williams will again co-host the show.

If you've seen "Good Morning, Vietnam" already, also recommend "The Serpent & The Rainbow" now showing at The Time theatre in Matoon. I'll review the film next week.

Kevin Bacon returns to screen in new Hughes' film

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A few years ago Kevin Bacon burst on the movie scene as the lighthearted rebel in the hit "Footloose." Just as suddenly, he went kicking and screaming into the night," he said in retrospect. "It was a reoriented film, and I fought so hard to be a teen idol. I considered myself a New York actor, and I wanted Chekhov for the rest of my career. The film was the No. 1 pop hit, and the little girl would have me on her mind. That was the last thing in the world I wanted. I fought to stay off the magazines and out of the papers.

"I've sort of gained a perspective on that. I love being in magazines. I guess it's a kind of process of growing up, leveling off and getting used to having a movie career, as used to it as you will ever get."

The once-reluctant star has been happily making the publicity rounds on behalf of his new film, "She's Having a Baby." Yes, another baby movie, though this one deals mostly with the events leading up to the birth. Bacon and Elizabeth McGovern star as a married couple facing the vicissitudes of their first years together.

John Hughes ("The Breakfast Club," "Planes, Trains and Automobiles")

wrote, directed and produced "She's Having a Baby," and you might expect him to be an autocrat on the set.

"If I have any criticism of John Hughes, it's that he should be a little less flexible," Bacon. "He is incredibly unprotective of his work."

"I come from the old school of theater, where you never ever change a lick of the play; it's sacrilege. The cinema being such an intimate medium, we want to be as comfortable and as real with the language as possible. . . John likes actors, and he likes the input they can give. Sometimes you take off and get so far from the material that it almost gets out of hand."

About his role as Jake Briggs, Bacon observed: "This is a character who takes a lot of plunges. He plunges into marriage, he plunges into a job, he plunges into a mortgage and ultimately at the end of the film plunges into fatherhood. He's worried and concerned about those things."

Bacon himself is getting ready to take the plunge at 29. He became engaged on Christmas Eve to Kyra Sedgwick, who appeared with him on the American Playhouse production of "Lemon Sky" on the Public Broadcasting Service this month.

Old sweethearts' find more enjoyment on Valentine's Day

CHICAGO (AP)—Valentine's Day, often a celebration of teenage puppy love, can be better for older sweethearts as they age some. They enjoy romance more when they were younger, a psychiatrist says.

Touching, holding hands, spending more time together and seeing the world through similar eyes all help older people feel closer to their lovers, says Dr. Herbert Forman, a periatric specialist at Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center.

"Older couples often find they have leisure (time) to take trips together or just relax and have fun. They have more time for romance," said Forman, who has made those observations in his work counseling older people for the past 10 years.

The tensions of work and raising children often keep younger couples from being more intimate, he said.

When they are first married and during their middle-age years, husbands and wives sometimes take out personal and work-related frustrations on each other, he said.

But these outside pressures usually decrease when their children leave the home and they retire, he said.

Dating: The lunatical voyage into the art of romance

By BRIAN BRUEGGEMANN
Staff writer

If a man starts dating the perfect girl, a better girl will come along and want to date him.

That is the nature of girlfriends and dating. In fact, the perfect girl is one of the more popular myths of manhood.

For example, take the time in high school when I was dating a tall, blonde lunatic. A mutual friend set us up for a blind date.

When I first met her, I knew she was a lunatic. Since dating her, sanity has become one of my main criteria in selecting a girlfriend.

I rang the lunatic's doorbell and she opened the door all goggle-eyed and grinning stupidly, which is about the only way a lunatic can grin.

Instead of a purse, the lunatic carried a plastic shopping bag which contained a hatchet, a meat cleaver, an herbal mixture which she said possessed mystical powers, a Charles Manson poster and a number of other items commonly associated with lunacy.

If I have ever been accused of being an anti-women's libber, it is because I've grown up dating women who are downright fearless, if not fearsome.

We were dating heavily and we really liked each other. Despite her lunacy, I thought to myself, "this is the perfect girl."

She was the perfect girl for about two weeks. That's when a girl named Aggie Hester generally let it be known throughout school that she wanted to date me. Aggie was a little cuter than the lunatic and considerably more sane.

When I heard Aggie wanted to date me, I phoned the lunatic and said "I really like you a lot, but I don't want to go steady with anyone right now. Can we still be friends?" (Translation: I really hate your guts and I don't want to go steady with you because I've got my eyes set on another girl.)

After I broke off relations with the lunatic, I started dating Aggie. Dating her was wonderful; she was pretty and more or less sane. "This is the perfect girl," I told myself.

She was the perfect girl for about two weeks. Aggie phoned one night and said "I really like you a lot, but I don't want to go steady with anyone right now. Can we still be friends?" (Translation: I really hate your guts and I don't want to go steady with you because I've got my eyes set on another guy.)

Now I had no girlfriend at all. I would have been better off staying with the lunatic.

That is the way dating works for all men.

First a man will start dating girl #1. Next, girl #2 will come along and let the man know she wants to date him. Girl #2 is more attractive, so the man ditches girl #1 and starts dating girl #2. Two weeks later, girl #2 breaks up with him because she has the hots for another guy.

After about a month, the man starts to miss the companionship of a girlfriend, so he starts dating girl #3. Two weeks later he meets girl #4, who he believes is more qualified to be the perfect girl. He breaks up with girl #3 and starts dating girl #4, who breaks up with him two weeks after that for another guy.

Thus, the man is trapped in a cycle. He is sucked into the never-ending search for the perfect girl; the search swirls beneath dating like the voracious giant whirlpool.

Although I've never been able to do anything, I'm pretty sure female secret meetings during Monday Night Football and Monday Night Baseball plan and execute vortexes.

I've been dating the same girl for past two years. I guess you could say I've been stuck at the same point in the vortex, but at least I'm not moving downward.

Lately my girlfriend has been dropping a lot of not-so-subtle hints about marriage. I doubt if that will happen anywhere in the near future.

That's because I'm sure there are only vortexes swirling beneath dating beneath marriage as well. And I think that if I got married, I'd run into White two weeks later and she'd kinda takes a shine to me.

Churchgoing kids' sex habits not different

WASHINGTON (AP)—Teenagers who attended conservative churches are similar in their sexual conduct to many of American's 17-year-olds, with more than 40 percent of the churchgoing youths having had intercourse by the time they reached college age, a survey says.

The "Teen Sex Survey in the Evangelical Church," released Monday, found that 43 percent of the "churched youth" who responded to a confidential, four-page questionnaire had sexual intercourse by the age of 18.

Thirty-five percent of the 17-year-olds said they had engaged in sexual intercourse, while 26 percent of the 16-year-olds said they had no intercourse.

The questionnaire was given to 1,438 young people, aged 12 to 18, last June and August. Eight evangelical denominations conducted the survey of the church-ed youths, whom they describe as teen-agers who are regular attenders.

By comparison, a Louis Harris and Associates poll in December 1986 found that 57 percent of the nation's 17-year-olds are sexually experienced, while 46 percent of the 16-year-olds and 29 percent of the 15-year-olds said they had had sexual intercourse.

The Harris poll, which was conducted in personal interviews with a national sample of 1,000 teen-agers, had a margin of error of three percentage points, the same margin as for the evangelical study.

Sixty-five percent of those who answered the evangelical study said intercourse by unmarried couples was never morally acceptable.

Eight percent of the respondents said intercourse always was morally acceptable between unmarried but willing people, while 17 percent said it was sometimes acceptable and 11 percent were not sure.
